A Decent Instrument

Some parents want to see if their child is really interested in learning to play piano before investing in a decent keyboard. Sadly, a toy keyboard can cause a child to lose interest. It's like trying to learn basketball with a beach ball that won't bounce. Fortunately, there are a lot of good new and used electric keyboards available for purchase. The minimum keyboard requirements are described in the document on this web page:

Piano Books

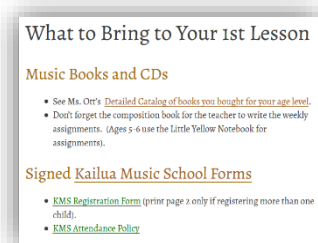

There is a set of beginner's books and music accompaniments for different age levels described in documents on the web page above. If you have any questions, contact Vanessa before making your purchase.

Booking Lesson Time

Contact Vanessa to see if there is an open lesson time that works for you. You must purchase the books and an instrument before the 1st Introductory Lesson. Please read the Attendance Policy on this page:
